LEND A HAND.
Do not stand idly wait
Till the waves have closed above him—
Till the hearse is at the gate:
Do not say you only pity—
Show a little more sympathy, too!
Though it be an erring brother,
Let him find a friend in you.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.
PIGIONS.—Unless pigeons are quite young they are better broiled, or stewed in broth, than in any other manner. Tie them in shape; place slices of lemon at the bottom of the stew-pan; lay in the pigeons side by side, all their breasts uppermost; add an onion with a clove stuck in, a teaspoonful of sugar, and some parsley, and pour over enough stock to cover them. If you have no stock, use boiling water. Now put some thin slices of bacon over the tops of the pigeons, cover them as closely as possible as possible, adding water or stock when necessary. Let them simmer until they are very tender. Serve each pigeon on a thin piece of buttered toast with a border of spinach, or make little nests of spinach on pieces of toast, putting a pigeon into each nest.

MACARONI AU GRATIN.—Take half a pound of spaghetti macaroni, four ounces of cheese, two ounces of butter, three-quarters of a cupful of Bechamel sauce. Do not mash the macaroni; throw it broken into convenient pieces, into boiling water which is well salted; stir or shake it frequently. The moment it is quite tender pour it into a colander and shake off all the water. When well drained, pour over it nearly all of the sauce and the grated cheese; turn it in the saucepan, mixing it well together without breaking the macaroni; put it into a greased dish; pour first the remainder of the sauce over the top, then the remainder of the cheese, and over this sprinkle a tablespoonful of cracker dust and dots of butter. Put it into a very hot oven ten minutes, coloring the top.

BABY'S BIRTHDAY DISH.—Here is a novel and pleasing way to prepare a desert. It is especially adapted for the children's birthday dinners. In these happy households where such days are kept as joyous festivals. Make a small hole in the end or side of a number of egg shells. Through this pour out the egg. Fill the empty shell with hot pudding, made of cornstarch, arrowroot, or Irish moss. When cold, break off the shells; serve on small saucers, and surround the egg-shaped puddings with jelly or jam. If you wish to take so much trouble, divide the pudding in two parts, and add to one a tablespoonful of grated chocolate, and in this way color part of the eggs. Sugar and cream, flavored with vanilla, is a very nice sauce with this kind of pudding.

LADY CAKE.—Blanch six ounces of shelled sweet almonds and bruise them with one gill of rose water, putting into the mortar only two or three almonds and a few drops of rose water at a time and pounding to a smooth paste. Take one pound of butter and one pound and a half of sugar and beat to a cream, then stir in the almond paste, alternately with one pint of the whites of eggs well beaten. Then stir in the last thing one gill of thick sweet cream. Beat long and well until you have it as light as possible. Pour into shallow, square tin pans, well buttered, and set immediately in a moderate oven. Bake one hour or more, according to thickness, cover with a light napkin and let cool gradually. When cold ice it with lemon icing. Do not cut it until next day. It will keep fresh a week if kept in a cool, dry place.
